AskCody is leading the way indoors, giving you the information you need - when you need it.

AskCody® is the ideal solution for large and dynamic indoor environments where wayfinding and efficiency is important and where you want to improve company identity and image.

Use AskCody at your campus, hospital, healthcare centre, office building or exhibition centre to improve wayfinding for visitors and daily users alike. This creates a more relaxed and efficient workplace environment, while simultaneously freeing your staff from the task of giving directions, allowing them instead to focus on their work.

Where's that room again? Where's my meeting? Who is coming today? Who are they visiting? Which meeting are they attending? Which visitors are currently in the building?

AskCody takes care of the daily questions at the front desk! AskCody makes it easy for your daily users and visitors to get an overview of today's events and meeting activities and makes it easy to find their way to the event they are attending.

AskCody will guide you to your destination whether it is finding people, rooms, or points of interest. You can even search for and get directions to specific meetings, appointments or other events and at the same time notifiy the meeting host that you are attending by checking in at your arrival.

Front desk employees will experience a significant improvement in their working procedures and tasks, and guests will automatically be provided with the needed information and always feel welcome at your company.
